SACRAMENTO INTELLIGENCE.

The unrecorded Dead.—The tales of misery and mortality which reach us of late from the mining districts, are truly pitiable. It is said that in Placerville alone, eight or ten persons have died daily for some weeks past, mostly from diseases incurred by the exhaustion and suffering of an overland journey. These are buried hastily, without any memento being made of their name or resting place. This is a most uncivilized course, and one which should no longer continue. It is strange if some thoughtful and philanthropic individual, will not trouble himself so far at least as to obtain and register the names, age, and native place of the deceased. Can a whole community be insensible to the importance of preserving such a record, and what unceasing anxiety and trouble might be avoided by its publication. Its neglect is fraught with countless evils to wives, family, friends and kindred. We need not enumerate them, surely attention need only be called to the matter, to insure an immediate remedy. There is not a paper in the country but would be favored by receiving such a notification of every death that occurs, as would enable them to put uncertainty at rest.

We learn that there are very numerous accessions now making to the population of these mines. The recent rains have caused the creeks to rise, and the ravines which in the dry season could not be occupied, are now worked to good advantage.—[Placer Times, 5th inst.]

Murders.—A gentleman just down from Marysville informs us that two bodies were found near the town of Linda, on Wednesday. The throats were cut, and the bodies thrown over the bank. Appearances indicated that the deed had been committed while they were encamped, and it is likely money was the object of the murderers, as nothing valuable was left on their persons. From the clothing, it is supposed that one only was an American. The faces were so disfigured, that no chance for recognition remained.

It was reported that three persons had been murdered, also, at Yuba city; but the stage left too soon to ascertain the truth of the rumor.

A man, just in the suburbs of Marysville, was stopped a day or two since, and pistols were fired upon him; he escaped, however, without injury. The frequent occurrence of these high handed attempts at robbery and murder evince the existence of a degree of desperation most lamentable to realize, and we fear that circumstances do not portend any mitigation of its prevalence.—[Ibid.]

The poor girl that was found in a teamster's wagon a few days ago, in a state of extreme prostration, died on Thursday evening, and was buried yesterday.—[Ibid.]

"A young woman was lately buried alive in the city of Mexico; but the grave being rather shallow, she dug herself out."

She was one of the California diggers; pure grit if not pure gold. Being in the vein, not rocked in the cradle of the deep, and finding the earth thrown upon her in quartz she was determined to pick herself out; and pick herself out she did.

COLTON'S THREE YEARS IN CALIFORNIA.

Thursday, March 8, 1849.—The town-hall, on which I have been at work for more than a year, is at last finished. It is built of a white stone, quarried from a neighboring hill, and which easily takes the shape you desire. The lower apartments are for schools; the hall over them—seventy feet by thirty—is for public assemblies. The front is ornamented with a portico, which you enter from the hall. It is not an edifice that would attract any attention among public buildings in the United States; but in California it is without a rival. It has been erected out of the slender proceeds of town lots, the labor of the convicts, taxes on liquor shops, and fines on gamblers. The scheme was regarded with incredulity by many; but the building is finished, and the citizens have assembled in it, and christened it after my name, which will now go down to posterity with the odor of gamblers, convicts and tipplers. I leave it as a humble evidence of what may be accomplished by rigidly adhering to one purpose, and shrinking from no personal efforts necessary to its achievement. A prison has also been built, and mainly through the labor of the convicts. Many a joke the rogues have cracked while constructing their own cage; but they have worked so diligently I shall feel constrained to pardon out the less incorrigible. It is difficult here to discriminate between offenses which flow from moral hardness, and those which result, in a measure, from untoward circumstances. There is a wide difference in the turpitude of the two; and an alcalde under the Mexican law, has a large scope in which to exercise his sense of moral justice. Better to err a furlong with mercy than a fathom with cruelty. Unmerited punishment never yet reformed its subject; to suppose it, is a libel on the human soul.

The Mining Immigration.
What crowds are rushing out here for gold! what multitudes are leaving their distant homes for this glittering treasure! Can gold warrant the hazards of the enterprise? Can it compensate the toils and suffering which it imposes? Can it repair a shattered constitution, or bring back the exhilarating pulse and play of youth? Let the wrecks of those who have perished speak; let the broken hearts and hopes of thousands utter their admonition. Their voices come surging over these pines, breaking from these cliffs, sighing in the winds, and knelling from the clouds. Your treasures you must resign at the dark portal of the grave, there the glittering heap, and the strong arms which wrenched it from the mine, lie down together; the spirit walketh alone through that troubled night; but a ray twinkles through its long aisle of darkness; follow that in meekness and faith, and it will lead you to the spirit-land. There dwell your kindred who adorned virtue with a spirit of contentment; there the parent whose latest prayer was for you; there the sister, who, in the hush of voices around, heard the sweet strains of an unseen harp, and was charmed away from the delusive dreams of earth, ere a hope of the heart had been broken, or sorrow had saddened a smile.—What is wealth to such an inheritance? what the society of kings to such companionship? Plume your wing for heaven ere it droops in the death-dew of its dissolving strength.

PUNCTUALITY.—A committee of eight gentlemen had appointed to meet at 12 o'clock. Seven of them were punctual, but the eighth came bustling in with apologies for being a quarter of an hour behind the time. "The time," said he, "passed away without my being aware of it. I had no idea of its being so late." &c. A Quaker present said "Friend, I am not sure that we should admit thy apology. It were matter of regret that thou shouldst have wasted thine own quarter of an hour; but there are seven besides thyself whose time thou hast also consumed, amounting in the whole to two hours, and one eighth of it only was thine own property."

Jack of all trades.—Wandering along the Levee, yesterday evening, we observed a common hand cart, about 4x8 feet, regularly fixed up as a dwelling, and upon close examination we found it occupied by a "jack of all trades." The resident, by his outward signs, professed to repair harness, put on a heel tap, or patch your boot; whilst within doors he could supply the weary with a refreshing draught, or the hungry with something more substantial. Probably a man could get lodgings there "on a pinch."—[Times.]

Large Doves.—For the last few weeks we have observed large doves of oxen, mules and horses passing through our streets. We understand the most of them are driven to ranches above, on the Sacramento, and to Cash Creek, a region of country which is represented as being exceedingly fertile, and well calculated for pasturage.—[Transcript.]

The new church of the Rev. Mr. Benton, on 6th street, is to be dedicated to-morrow at 10 o'clock.—[Placer Times.]

A correspondent of the National Intelligencer, who is travelling in Europe, in giving an account of a visit to Munich, and of the King and ex-King of Bavaria, says: The King passed me at full gallop, followed only by a groom. As I raised my hat, he doffed his as low as his knee. He was in a morning dress, as plain as any other gentleman. He seems about thirty, not bad looking. He has two ugly brats, of four and six years old, and it was funny to see the sentinels saluting them as they walked, followed by a big groom and nurse. I had much curiosity to see the ex-King Louis, for whom I had felt contempt, but for whom my visits to his capital have inspired me with much respect; and I think but for one piece of weak folly he might be called almost a great King. He is a poet, a painter, and a patriot. He found Munich of brick, and left it marble, displaying both genius and taste in whatever he attempted, and in a lavish expenditure from his own purse. The churches, especially, which he built, are among the finest in Northern Europe. I saw him but once. It was drizzling, and he slung himself along under a big umbrella, taking off his hat to all who saluted him. He was dressed much like myself, but not so well, in a black frock coat, dove-colored trousers, a light vest, and a black neckerchief. He is now nearly sixty, and would be handsome but for the unsettled expression of his eye, belonging more to the poet than of action. I followed him a quarter of a mile, and found he was going to church.

An anecdote is given, relative to Sir Robert Peel's state of health on the day of the accident. After being in the House until near four o'clock on that morning, he attended the commissioners for the exhibition of 1851, at eleven, and sat silent, taking no part in the proceedings, until, something having been proposed, and Prince Albert applying to him for his opinion, he answered, "I dissent from it altogether." Whereupon his royal highness observed, "Then take a pen, Sir Robert, and give it to us in your own way." The baronet, who was known to be one of the quickest and readiest of writers, made several ineffectual attempts, and at length put down the pen and left the room, observing to the secretary as he went out, "Call on me on Monday, and I will give it you." The surprise of the commissioners was great, not only at this, but at his unusual abstracted appearance from the time he entered the room. This tends to confirm the opinion that Sir Robert fell from his horse in a fit.

THE ELECTION TO-DAY.

By the time that this paper has obtained general circulation in the city, the several election polls will be open, and the contest between Democracy and Whiggery actively commenced. Upon those into whose hands this sheet may fall, who have not yet voted, we would urge the sacred duty of sustaining Democratic men and measures, as opposed to Federalism and its advocates. California was secured by Democratic votes, and the probability is, that the steamer now due will bring the cheering intelligence that she has been admitted as one of that glorious galaxy of States, of which we are all but too proud to be citizens; and let us send back, by the next departure, the no less welcome news that she accepts the place tendered her in the national household, and enters the door with the Banner of Democracy waving proudly over her golden breastplate!

There are important considerations which should prompt every Democrat to do his whole duty to-day. There should be no faltering now; no lukewarmness, no coolness, while the enemy are moving heaven and earth to overwhelm us with defeat. A victory now will insure an easy triumph for years to come. Whiggery will hardly dare to raise its hydra-head among the golden treasures of California, even with all the official interference and activity of government office holders.

Let us, then, devote this day to the service of our country. Let there be a "long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether," and victory is ours!

FRAUD! FRAUD!

Democrats, beware of fraud! Among the thousands of spurious tickets afloat there is one styled the "Regular Democratic Ticket," with the name of Calhoun Benham, a bitter whig federalist, in the place of Alexander Wells, who is the regular democratic candidate for District Attorney. Such desperate and unscrupulous frauds as these show to what hopeless extremities the whig leadars are driven.

VOTE EARLY!

We hope every democrat will turn out and vote at an early hour. The whigs and "independents" will put in their votes early, to brag on. Brag is a good dog, but hold-fast is a better. Vote early, and then stand by the polls till night. Bring up every voter, and victory is ours!

THE STRAIGHT TICKET.—Democrats should be careful to-day to examine their ballots. Innumerable "splits" will be circulated by the enemy, and they must be watched. Look out for them. They have no hope of success, except by dividing the democrats. If they succeed in doing that, they are safe.

HUNT 'EM UP!—Every Democrat, when he casts his ballot, should look about him, to see whether his neighbor has voted. If he has not, go after him yourself, or give notice to some friend or the committee. There is no trouble about a victory, if the voters are only brought out.

LOOK OUT!—A counterfeit Democratic ticket, with the name of the Whig nominee for District Attorney upon it, has been printed, and an attempt will be made to get them into the ballot boxes to-day. We reiterate that falsehood had been actively circulated to the effect that the Democratic candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction, Frederick P. Tracy, Esq., was once engaged in an affray in the region of Stockton, and killed his opponent. We have only time or room this morning to say that the story is a malicious FALSEHOOD. One year since, a man named John Tracy, did kill an individual in Stockton, in self-defense, and was tried and acquitted.

A party that will resort to such disgraceful means to secure political ends, deserve the lowest depths of infamy. They would not only defeat an able and deserving man, but would blast a spotless reputation for political purposes.

The following letter from Judge Lyons, of the Superior Court, sets this falsehood at rest:

DEAR SIR: In reply to the request in your note of this morning, that I would state if the Mr. Tracy who was charged with and tried for murder in Stockton last autumn be identical with yourself, I will state that the name of that gentleman is John Tracy, and that you had no connection whatever with that matter.

This simple statement will I trust, serve to disabuse the minds of those who have erroneously confounded you with the gentleman referred to,

Yours, &c., H. A. LYONS.

F. P. TRACY, Esq.,

A QUESTION ANSWERED.—"Who is W. C. Hoff?" is a question that has been often asked since the nominations were made by the democratic committee. We can answer that Mr. Hoff is a gentleman of sound practical ability and large experience, who has been a resident of California for sixteen months, and is among our most enterprising citizens. We know him well as our shipmate in a six months' voyage around Cape Horn, and we know that a better man for the Legislature could not be named. Wm. Hoff is a democrat whom all parties will delight to honor, and who will serve them faithfully in whatever part he is called by the suffrages of the people.

BOATMEN AROY! The Whigs are boasting that they have got the boatmen all right; that almost to a man they are going for the Whig nominees. Look to this, Democratic boatmen! and know who are your friends. We should as soon expect to be struck with lightning in a fair day, as to see the boatmen voting the federal ticket; but Whiggery has the unblushing impudence to declare that they have "fixed the Boatmen." Hard-fisted workingmen! show them to the contrary by your action to-day!

THE "INDEPENDENTS" are industrious in issuing all sorts of tickets, and it has been their game to promise support to all sorts of men, and they have succeeded in making Judge Morse believe he really stands a chance for an election, while in fact he is out of the race, distanced on the start. McRae and Shattuck are the only ones to be seriously considered as candidates. Morse is nowhere, McRae will be elected beyond doubt.

SPLIT TICKETS.—Look out for "split tickets" to-day. See that every ballot has on the name of the regular Democratic candidates, and no others. We want no mongrel, native American "Independent" arrangements in this campaign. We have got the party strength to elect every man, if the game of the whigs is closely watched and successfully blocked.

COME OUT!—Every voter should be on hand early this morning. There is nothing like taking a good start on election day. It tells wonderfully in a contest, and gives opportunity to arouse the dilatory before the close of the polls.

FELLOW DEMOCRATS!

Touch not the Combination Tickets. If you all vote the regular ticket we are sure to succeed. By joining with our foes or voting combination tickets you endanger the success of the democracy.

BRIBERY!

The whigs boast that they can bribe enough voters to succeed at this election; but the true democracy will show them that their principles are not to be sold. They reckon without their hosts.

STOP THIEF!

We have just learned that it is the intention of some of our unscrupulous opponents to bring up a party of Sydney convicts to vote.

Look out for the Sydney coveys!

THE STATE CAPITAL.

The Convention at Monterey, composed of intelligent citizens from every part of California, and probably embodying in as great a degree as any public body ever could the opinions of its constituents, fixed upon the Pueblo de San Jose, for the seat of government, after a full consideration of the claims of other sections of the state.

When the Legislature met on the 15th of December, in the midst of the rainy season, so early after the promulgation of the action of the Convention, there had been no sufficient time to prepare proper accommodations for that body; and the consequence was that a good deal of dissatisfaction was engendered in the minds of members. It was this feeling of dissatisfaction that induced other parties to originate plans for the removal of the Capital elsewhere; but so many claimants presented themselves as bidders for the prize, that it was found impossible to get a constitutional majority in favor of any particular location. It was therefore resolved upon to submit the question to the decision of the people at the next general election, although it was obvious that the question would not be then definitely settled; as no change of location can be made in any event except by a two-thirds vote of all the members elected to each house of the legislature.

The claims of Vallejo rest almost entirely upon the liberality of the proposition of Gen. V., although scarcely more liberal than that of Mr. Reed, at San Jose. It is known, however, that upon the bare old hills of Vallejo not a house yet exists; nor have the parties interested in getting the Capital removed to that locality a dollar to expend in the erection of buildings other than what shall be raised by a tax upon the holders of lots, provided the speculation be successful. That for much of the year this is a pleasant location is not denied. It is true there are no trees upon the hills to add to the charm of the landscape, and the cold winds of the coast find here full play; but to offset any lack of natural advantages, the choice of Vallejo will "put money in the purses" of worthy gentlemen who otherwise might have to seek for gain in some legitimate business.

Every person in California knows of the admirable advantages and centrality of San Jose. A fertile valley of sixty miles in length, and from five to twenty-five in breadth; a climate that is unparalleled for salubrity, and for the benefit of which even now invalids resort to the valley from all portions of the state; a city of five thousand inhabitants, with villages and farms around;—all these and many more, are the advantages of the present seat of government of the state. The valley of Santa Clara is destined to be the garden of California, and we are certain it would be chosen by acclamation were the decision to be given upon the simple merits of the question, divested of all factitious aids.

The Alta California, in an able article on the subject, says:

"A location at any place further north than San Jose would be almost entirely inaccessible to southern members, except through San Francisco, and especially so, if it were on the north side of the waters between here and Stockton. San Jose has in fact all the facilities of any other place named, and more than some of them. The project of locating the Capital merely to build up a city around it, and thus make real estate valuable, bringing the state into a subservience to the plans of speculators, is not only absurd but wicked—wicked if it be done for that purpose or through such influences. And what questions other than those of speculation enter into the calculations and patriotism of those who urge the removal from its present appropriate location? Accessibility, salubrity, centrality, justice, convenience, all would seem to indicate the present location as the proper one."

Voters of San Francisco! Do not be deceived by the magnificence of offers that are never to be realized, but at the polls to-day give your votes for the present popular Capital of the state.

AN INDEMNITY.—The legitimate inference from the remarks of a speaker at a recent whig gathering was, that if the people would elect him to a certain office he would send for his wife and family and live at San Jose; but if the contrary was the result, he would leave the country! The gentleman is what may be termed a good fellow, and much as we should regret his leaving, and much as his family would adorn the society of our infant state, the people will hardly regard that as an inducement enough to vote for a whig.

THE RIGHT OF SUFFRAGE.

By the Constitution of California, every white male citizen of the United States, and every white male citizen of Mexico, who shall have elected to become a citizen of the United States, under the treaty of peace exchanged and ratified at Queretaro, May 30th, 1848, of the age of 21 years, and who shall have been a resident of the state six months next preceding the election, or of the county or district in which he offers his vote, for thirty days, shall be entitled to vote, at all elections authorized by law.

The exceptions to this general law, are of course persons convicted of some infamous crime, and idiot and insane persons.

THE WHIGS

Profess to be the friends of the workingmen, and at Clark's Point the other night, some of their orators appealed to the Boatmen for support, pretending great friendship for them, and yet we learn that the whig collector and his whig subordinates employ negroes in the custom house boats and barges, in preference to white American citizens, many of whom are now idle about the wharves and waiting for employment. This shows how much the whigs love the boatmen. The boatmen will take good care not to vote for any of the custom house clique.

The "Snufflakers" were out in their glory Saturday evening, with a band of music, and sundry jack-o'-lanterns, representing the false lights which they hold out to the democracy, to decoy them from the support of the regular nominees. Like the political leaders in the matter, the lights played a kind of now-you-see-it and now-you-don't-see-it game all the evening, and at the close, illustrated the political death of the prime movers in the affair, by going out entirely, and leaving the crowd to grope their way in the dark. So mote it be with "the Independents."

THE "INDEPENDENTS."—Let us again admonish the Democratic voters that whatever support the independent ticket receives, must come from them. The Whigs will not go it. They do not intend to do so; but they encourage by their presence and hurrahs, and then quietly go to the polls and vote the straight Whig ticket. We tell you, Democrats, this is the game, "as sure as you are born," and if you would defeat their only hopes of success, vote the clean Democratic ticket, and "nothing else."

AN INCIDENT.

While the illuminated procession of the "Independents" was passing through Clay street on Saturday evening, a democratic hombre called for three cheers for Aleck Wells, which was heartily responded to by those in the line.

This incident alone is an evidence of the popularity of our candidate for District Attorney.

Democrats should look well to their tickets, and see that the name of Charles S. McRae is upon them for Judge of the Superior Court. He is the regularly nominated candidate, and by his talent and integrity is fully entitled to the confidence of the public.

"YONGE IRELAND."—We trust that the foreign portion of our population, who were sneered at by one of the whig speakers at the meeting on the plaza, under the designation of "Young Ireland," will properly rebuke these federal aspirants at the polls to-day.

Frederick P. Tracy is the Democratic candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction, an office for which he is eminently qualified, and which he will fill with fidelity and honor. Vote for him to-day, sure.

Mr. Wm. G. Moorhead, who was offered the position of one of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund, by Mayor Geary, declined the honor, because of the pressing nature of his own private business.

WITHDRAWN.—M. W. F. McLean publishes a card withdrawing as a candidate for member of Assembly on the Independent ticket, and avowing his determination to give the regular Democratic ticket his support.

SEPARATE BALLOT.

The law requires the ballot for location of the seat of government of the state to be separate, and endorsed "State Capital." Voters will be careful to fold their tickets so as to show the endorsement on the outside.

SAN JOSE.

The friends of San Jose are requested to call at the Pacific News office for ballots in favor of that city. Let every man vote the ticket, for which a separate box is kept by the inspectors.

PUEBLO DE SAN JOSE.

To-day the people will decide which site they prefer as their future Capital, San Jose, or—we were about to say, Vallejo. But as we recollect that this is only the name of a man and not of a town, it struck us as a case of non existat, and of course nothing could be affirmed thereof. We have no doubt that in the brains of certain men of gigantic speculative designs, there has existed a town—aye a capital town, of that name; to form which they think is a capital place to make themselves some capital out of nothing, if the dear people will give them the Capital.

In the Sacramento valley the people, though at a late day, are arousing to the nature of the stupendous speculation involved in the attempt to change the location of the seat of Government to the hills above Benicia. We make an extract from the report of a meeting held in that city on Friday evening last:

"Dr. Deal took up the subject of the permanent location of the Capital. He was opposed to its removal at present, because the State is in an unsettled condition, because the people are not prepared to vote understandingly on this question, and because he considered Vallejo's project a speculation; Vallejo intending to turn over several hundred thousand dollars into the State Treasury towards the erection of State buildings, by means of the sale of his lots, made valuable by the location of the Capital there."

Samuel Brannan, Esq., then offered a resolution to the following effect:

Resolved, That we believe the project of removing the Capital to Vallejo, is gotten up by speculators and political demagogues, and we are opposed to any action on this question at present.

Mr. Brannan supported his resolution at length, and was very severe on Vallejo's project, as well as upon demagogism in general. Judge Hesp followed upon the same side. He did not think it was time for the decision of the question. The country is too new and unsettled."

It will be perceived that these mere speculative designs, respecting Mr. Vallejo's proposition, are properly understood in Sacramento, as they should be here. It is well known, and not to be denied, that Mr. V. possesses no means adequately to carry out any such a project as is contained in his "princely offer." And if he did, California does not need to go a begging to find means to erect her public buildings. The whole scheme is too preposterous!

San Jose is our choice, and we believe it will be the choice of the unbought and intelligent people of the State.

TO HAVE IMMEDIATE DESPATCH

Preparations are now making to despatch an expedition to the Farallones, without delay. Everything will be in readiness to sail this evening at the going down of the sun. The craft will be commanded by Capt. Crane, and the "Universal whig party" will be the only passengers. The odoriferous breezes of that delightful region are wafted with the winds, and will drown the "smell of whiskey" that may attach to any of the passengers. The expedition will leave to-night, sure, and freight or passage may be secured by application to the Whig General Committee, or to the captain on board.

N. B.—The expedition will be piloted by about an omnibus load of "Independent" hombres, who will make this California "Salt River" their future permanent residence.

AUCTION SALES.—Our readers are referred to the auction head this morning. Though voting will be the principal business of the day, yet there will be some time for other things. It will be seen that J. B. Huie & Co. again present themselves to the readers of the "News," and we are sure they will find their interest greatly promoted thereby. They are heartily welcome.

THE JUDGE.—The Alta of yesterday announces that Judge Crane is to make a temperance speech and sign the pledge; but mistakes the time when. It will be seen by an advertisement in another column that the Judge postpones the pledge till after election. The steam is up too high to be shut off all at once!

NO STEAMER YET.—The hills were thronged yesterday with anxious watchers for the steamers now overdue, but in vain—for none came. The fog set in very thick towards evening, so that we cannot expect the news from the states till to-day.

DEMOCRATIC MASS MEETING.

The democracy of the city assembled in council again on Saturday evening, at Central wharf, foot of Commercial street. The boatmen, workingmen and operatives generally turned out in large numbers, and were as enthusiastic and united as the most ardent could wish to see.

At the hour appointed for the organization the following officers were chosen:

President.—Halsey Brower, Esq.
Vice Presidents.—John P. Emmett, J. H. Huxley, Capt. Forey, C. A. Hosmer, C. Holland, Wm. Kennedy.
Secretaries.—Bela Dexter, H. P. Carr.

The President, Mr. Brower, on taking the chair, remarked that he was a working and not a speaking man; that he was prepared to do all in his power for the success of democratic principles. He was a candidate before the nominating committee for member of assembly, and it had been asserted that because he was elected to stay at home, and some one else to go to San Jose, that he was opposed to the ticket. In answer he had only to say, that he should go the whole ticket and nothing but the ticket. [Great applause.]

In answer to the mass below, Alexander Wells, Esq. came forward, and remarked that the present was a kind of triangular fight. The federal party had arrayed themselves in all their force, and commenced by abusing the democratic party. At a meeting the other night the speakers talked long and loud about the corruption and bad legislation of "the locofoco party." But it would be recollected that the whigs raised the cry of "no party" in California, and by that means some of them obtained seats in the last legislature, and whatever errors were committed, they were alike responsible for with the democrats. The cry of "Union of Californians for the sake of California" had enabled a whig, here and there, to creep into positions to which they could not otherwise have been elected. [Here an alarm of fire was raised, but the speaker informed them that it was a trick of the enemy; that the same party burned blue lights on the coast in the last war, to decoy vessels on shore, and they were now burning blue lights here to deceive your mariners and wreck your vessels.] It had been charged that the democrats in the common council had passed laws that were oppressive to boatmen, when the fact was that the whigs had a majority in the boards, and passed these same laws themselves. The salary bill was their own offspring, and to them must attach the responsibility. Give the democrats a fair opportunity, and they would demonstrate to the world that they were now, as they ever had been, the true friends of the working classes. In San Francisco alone had the federal party been able to raise its head in California; but here were the federal officers sent on by government, and the custom house must be active.

In conclusion Mr. Wells remarked that the Democrats had placed upon their ticket, good, sound, and faithful men, worthy of confidence and esteem, and the Democracy should rally as one man, to their support. [Three deafening cheers were given for the speaker, who is the candidate for District Attorney.]

Col. Weller, in responding to a call, said he could not resist the temptation to say a word on the eve of so important a political contest. We were going into a battle, the result of which would have an important bearing upon the future prosperity of our country. It was important now, that we should select honest and capable men, and such has the Democratic party put forth for the suffrages of the people. The Whigs had abused the last Legislature, but no body of men had accomplished so much in so short a time. The foreign miner's tax was a law of necessity. The Legislature sought to obtain the necessary means to carry on the State Government, and although the tax may have been high, the project was well conceived, and with the best of motives. The Whigs were lavish in their professions of love for the poor, but like the hard cider promises of 1840, they were false; and if you would rebuke these men, come up to the ballot box on Monday and vote the entire Democratic ticket. He had known the candidate for Judge of the Superior Court, Chas. S. McRae, for eighteen years, and a more high-minded, honorable man, did not live. He was capable and faithful, and, with the others upon the same ticket, should receive the support of the Democracy. Like old soldiers, they should fall into line, and do duty under the glorious Republican Banner which had so often led them on to victory.

The meeting was further ably and eloquently addressed by Wm. R. Kinder, Esq., and Alanson Smith, Esq., but in consequence of the large size of our type we have no room for an outline of their speeches. They were listened to with the most devoted attention, and the sentiments which they advanced, were received with the loudest applause. At a late hour the meeting adjourned, with six rousing cheers for the entire ticket, to meet at the polls this morning.

BOLD ATTEMPT TO MURDER.—Mr. George W. Brooks, of Illinois, came to our office this morning after three o'clock, in company with some friends, known to us, and stated that he had been knocked down, and robbed, about half a square from our building, on K street, between 3d and 4th. He was going to the house of a friend at nine o'clock last evening, and when passing that point, he was accosted by two men, to know the distance to the river. At that moment a third approached from behind, and dealt a heavy blow which felled him to the earth, where he remained in a state of unconsciousness until about two o'clock. Mr. B. has lately arrived over the plains, and had sold his oxen yesterday. The robbers rifled his pockets of all he had, $400. Mr. B.'s face and head were much bruised. This is the boldest attempt at robbery and murder that has yet occurred in our city. At 9 o'clock in the evening, and on the most public street, J. excepted, in the city.—[Transcript.]

TO THE LADIES.—T. P. Everett, at his Hat Emporium, on Commercial street, has just received a fresh supply of ladies' riding hats, dresses and whips, of the latest and most beautiful styles. Several "full rigs" were disposed of on Saturday, but there are a "few more left of the same sort."

SAD ACCIDENT.—A building which a party of workmen were engaged in raising on Saturday, on Sacramento near Kearny street, fell with a crash, killing almost instantly Mr. Dupree, the contractor. He was from Springfield, Mass., where he leaves a wife and child. There, as here, he was highly respected.

SUICIDE.—The Frenchman, named Enos Keifer, who cut his throat on Friday last, died at the hospital on Saturday afternoon. Coroner Gallagher held an inquest, and a verdict was rendered that the act was committed by himself, while in a state of mental derangement.

COOL PROCEEDINGS.—A man, supposed to be deranged, deliberately rode a horse into the drug store near the corner of Clay street, on Saturday, and in backing him out, the horse smashed some of the panes of glass in the doors. The man was properly cared for.

GOLD DUST.—The New Orleans, which sailed on Saturday, took about $380,000 in gold dust.

05 21 [A copy.]

To the Electors of the city and county of San Francisco: The undersigned, Inspectors, appointed by the County Judge, to superintend the election, to be held on the 7th of October next, would make the following suggestions:

The ballots for the different officers, to be elected, both State, District, County and City, will be received in one box, and the names of the candidates for such offices should therefore be on one ticket, but no vote can be given for Judge of the Superior Court, or Harbor Master, by any person residing without the limits of the city of San Francisco. According to the provisions of the statute, the ballots for State capital must be on a separate ticket, deposited in a separate box, and be endorsed upon the outside, "State Capital."

The Inspectors would also suggest that article II Sec. 1 of the Constitution provides that no person can be a qualified elector, unless he shall have resided in the State six months next preceding the election, and in the county or district in which he claims his vote, thirty days.

formed by the dlos; for our Leana, now we presume no amorous Yankee priestess to swim after. A young man, by the name of Clinton Jackson, swam across the Niagara river under the falls, and back again, without landing to take breath, merely touching land on the other side. To those acquainted with the Niagara Falls, and aware of the muscle required to get the ferry boat from side to side, it is unnecessary to explain that though the river at this point is not more than a quarter of a mile broad, yet the most lively swimmer, from the immense strength of the tide, against which he has to struggle, is unable to gain the opposite shore under three-quarters of a mile. It is, therefore, no small undertaking to swim a mile and a half in the most rapid river in the world, with the certain knowledge that a cramp or faint-heartedness would in a few moments carry you into the rapids below, where the river is supposed to travel at the rapid rate of twenty-eight miles an hour—there to be dashed to pieces on the rocks, or to be sucked in the famous whirlpool.
Jackson performed the feat without difficulty, keeping his head and neck above water during the whole time, and never turning on his back. —[St.
Catharine's Journal.]

A CUTE ROGUE.—From the number of thefts being daily committed, we are led to infer that our city is infested with a number of pickpockets who are up to all the tricks of their trade. A Mr. Terrill, from Burlington, Iowa, was in conversation the other day with a well-dressed man, who conversed intelligibly on the topics of the day, but was suddenly found missing. On searching his pockets Mr. T. discovered that his purse, containing several hundred dollars, had been abstracted, and on further examination found that the rogue had absolutely unscrewed the gold chain to his watch, and taken it with the other booty.
The thief probably found that he could not secure the watch without detection, and satisfied himself by taking the chain. We shouldn't be surprised if he called around for the watch one of these days. —[Transcript.]

GOVERNMENT AID TO THE IMMIGRATION.—We learn that Gen. Smith will be unable to lend any material assistance in the present emergency, in consequence of the limited resources of his department. There are not funds enough on hand to meet ordinary expenses. The military stations will render all relief in their power, but it cannot avail much, as they are out of the way, except the post at Rock River.
The work of humanity devolves upon the people of California, and to them alone can the suffering thousands now appeal. —[Times.]

A TRUE LAWYER.—Alexander Hamilton was once applied to as counsel by a man having the guardianship of several orphans, who, on coming of age, would succeed to a large and valuable estate, of which there was a material defect in the title deeds, known only to their guardian, who wanted to get the title vested in himself. Hamilton noted down the faithless executor's statement, and then said to him:
"Settle with these unhappy infants honorably to the last cent, or I will hunt you from your skin like a hare." This advice was strictly followed, and the man who gave it was an ornament to the bar, and to the age he lived in.

MR. BIGELOW.—The health and strength of the Mayor are improving rapidly, and he thinks he will be able to come up to Sacramento next week.
He is as yet unable to walk. The ligatures have all left the arm, and it is rapidly healing. The other wound is closing up, and nearly well.

A RATIONAL CONCLUSION.—An honest Dutchman, in training up his son in the way he should go, frequently exercised him in bible lessons. On one of these occasions he asked him:

"Who was that would not sleep with Botiver's wife?"
"Shoseph."
"Dat's a coot poy! Vel, vat was de reason why he would not shleep mit her?"
"Don't know; shpose he wasn't shleepy."

The man who got intoxicated on root beer, and then tried to cut his throat with a mackerel, has had his sentence commuted.

love, calignani:
"About three years since a worthy clergyman destroyed himself in a fit of desperation, after having written a letter, in which he declared that his reason for making away with himself was that he could not survive the knowledge of his dishonor. A thousand reports were current at the time, as to the precise cause which led to the catastrophe.
When the husband was dead a liason sprung up, and was almost publicly acknowledged between his widow and a young man in the neighborhood, but satiety was soon followed by coldness and scenes of reproach, caused by the jealousy of the widow, whose lover seemed to neglect her more every day. The intimacy between them still continued, however, notwithstanding the clouds which so frequently disturbed its course, and the young man was accustomed to take his meals almost daily at the house of his mistress. On Thursday last he dined there as usual, when having scarcely risen from the table, he was seized with burning pins and vomiting, sufficiently alarming in their character to cause the assistance of a medical man to be called in.
Immediately on his arrival, at the first examination of the patient's countenance, and of the substances vomited by him, the man of science suspected the case to be one of poisoning. His treatment was that usually resorted to in such cases; but in spite of the promptitude and energy of the measures adopted, the patient expired, accusing his mistress of the deed. As for the individual in question, as soon as the first symptoms of poison appeared, she became completely wild, and when her lover was dead, she appeared struck with stupor, shut herself up in her apartment, and refused all assistance or consolation. She remained thus secluded during two days, when suddenly the neighbors heard proceeding from her lodging the sound of an exploded fire-arm. The doors were broken open, and the commissary of police summoned. On his arrival, all that was found was a lifeless corpse. The unfortunate woman had shot herself!"

A letter from a friend of Louis Philippe says: "It is perfectly true that Louis Philippe regards a fusion of the two branches as the only reasonable solution in France. The Duchess of Orleans is not favorable to the proposition, but her opposition is by no means so great as some of your journals pretended. In her conversation with the ex-King, she is very careful not to say anything that could offend or annoy him on this subject, and at times she appears to be convinced by his arguments; and so great is the influence of Louis Philippe over his family, that it would not be astonishing to see the Duchess of Orleans become a convert to his views. The most affectionate intercourse exists between the ex-King and his daughter-in-law, but he talks to her as he would to a man, and thus shows the reliance that he has in her judgment. His favorite, I ought almost say his pet, is the Duchess de Nemours. He appears absolutely to dote on her, and her devotedness to him is delightful to witness.
The Duke de Nemours agrees fully with the father. As to the Prince de Joinville and the Duke d'Aumale, it is well known that they are not favorable to a fusion; but if the King should carry his ideas on this point to the extent of laying his injunction upon them, be assured that it would be religiously observed."

Major Noah says, there was at one time an attempt on the part of several European newspapers to create public sympathy for the poor ex-King of the French, on account of the extreme poverty and destitution to which the ingrate republicans had reduced him. All, however, who were afflicted with tender emotions at the said idea, may dismiss their sorrow, for it appears that the old gentleman, like a prudent old gentleman as he always was, has taken pretty good care amid the shaking of empires, and the wreck of his throne, to feather his nest pretty well. His private fortune has suffered great depreciation within the last two years, but still it yields him the snug little income of $800,000 a year, or thereabouts. This, by his will, he has divided equally among each of his eight children and grandchildren, leaving to each the moderate competence of $100,000 a year, upon which, small as it is, we sincerely trust that they may be able to wriggle through life.

Good Advice.—An eastern editor says: Never let people work for you gratis. If you do, you will never get out of their debt in all eternity.
Two years ago a man carried a bundle for us to Boston, free of cost.
The consequence is that we have been lending him two shillings a week ever since.

CHINESE TEAR BOTTLE.—It is a custom among the Chinese to have a tear bottle. When two ladies or females of the lower rank quarrel, they go before a magistrate. A tear bottle is given the individual who says she has been aggrieved, and if she can fill it with tears the magistrate says:
"I perceive that you have been harshly treated. I shall award a great punishment to the one by whom you have been oppressed." If she can only half fill it, the punishment is reduced one half; but if she cannot shed one tear, there is no punishment at all.

MORE GOLD DISCOVERED.—We learn from the Savannah News, that a gold mine has been discovered in Morgan County, Ga., which promises an abundance of the precious metal. It is on the land of Mr. Dawson Law, who states that a man can easily make five dollars a day by digging. Particles the size of a pea are commonly found.

nocturnal adventures are not, it is said, of the most becoming kind.
There is a story of his having, a few nights ago, played off a practical joke on a rag-gatherer, and of his having narrowly escaped a sound drubbing for his pains.

THE PEOPLE OF THE STATE of California, District of the County of Santa Clara: Jose De Arnaz vs. Genoveva Garcia Mangel, Emanuel Mangel and Lorenzo Geoffrey. Petition to foreclose mortgage, &c.

Whereas, Jose De Arnaz filed in this Court on the 16th day of May, 1850, his petition, showing, among other things, that on the 20th day of December, 1849, Genoveva Garcia Mangel, the wife of Emanuel Mangel, was the owner in fee of a certain house and lot in San Jose, adjoining and in the rear of the house lately occupied by Messrs. Larrain, Benitez & Co., and fronting on Garcia street, did on that day mortgage the same, with the consent of Emanuel Mangel, her husband, to said Arnaz, to secure the sum of five hundred and sixty dollars, payable four months from date: That afterwards, on or about the 15th day of January, 1850, said Emanuel Mangel and Genoveva G. Mangel executed a mortgage on the same premises to one Geoffrey, of San Francisco, for about fourteen hundred dollars; which said mortgage was falsely dated the 19th of December, 1849, with intent to defeat the prior mortgage lien on said real estate, and to cheat and defraud said petitioner out of his debt. Said petitioner prays discovery and full answer to the above facts, that said mortgage to Geoffrey be set aside as fraudulent, and that said premises be sold to pay petitioner's mortgage, and for general relief.

And it being proved by affidavit to the satisfaction of this Court that Emanuel Mangel is a non-resident of this State, notice is hereby given to Emanuel Mangel to be and appear before the Honorable Court of the Third Judicial District, for the County of Santa Clara, on the fourth Monday of December, 1850, at the court house in San Jose, then and there to answer said petition, or, in default thereof, the allegations therein contained will be heard in your absence and decreed accordingly.

Given under my hand and private seal, there being no seal of office, this 24th of May, A. D. 1850.
